About Us

Australian Christian Churches (ACC) is a movement of Pentecostal Churches in voluntary cooperation, formed in 1937. Each individual church is self-governing, but commits itself to work together with other churches in the movement for the purpose of mutual support and the spread of the gospel in Australia and the world.

ACC has experienced consistent growth, particularly in the last twenty years and currently consists of more than 1,100 churches with over 215,000 members

A company called ACC Directorate (ACCD) (ABN 65 004 617 467), formerly known as Assemblies of God in Australia, operating as part of the wider ACC group, offers unsecured debentures as a way for members and churches to invest in the movement and support the growth of member churches.

What are 'unsecured debentures'?

A debenture is essentially a promise by a company to repay money lent to it by an investor and, in the case of ACC ACCumulator, to pay interest. ACC ACCumulator debentures are unsecured, meaning that repayment of the money lent by investors is not guaranteed.

ACC is the largest Pentecostal movement in Australia. ACC ACCumulator is the name given to Unsecured Debentures issued by the ACC Directorate (ACCD). Your investment is backed by the ACCD balance sheet, meaning its assets are available to meet repayment and interest obligations to investors in the ACC ACCumulator. In this way, ACCD stands by every investment in ACC ACCumulator. However, repayment is not guaranteed by ACCD, or secured by specific ACC assets.

Debentures are different to deposits with banks or other authorised deposit taking institutions. This is because those kinds of organisations are regulated by the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority (APRA) and are required to maintain specific kinds of reserves to meet the claims of depositors.

These requirements do not apply to ACCD or the ACC ACCumulator.

They are also different from other investments such as shares in a company and units in a managed investment scheme. The return on these sorts of investments depends on the performance of the assets of the company. ACC ACCumulator debentures pay a rate of interest that may be fixed or variable depending on the term you have selected.

Your investment in ACC ACCumulator is not able to be transferred or assigned to anyone else and can only be redeemed with ACCD.

Term Investments cannot be traded and early termination is available only in accordance with the ACC ACCumulator terms and conditions.

The ACC ACCumulator

ACC ACCumulator is issued by the ACC Directorate (ACCD), (formerly Assemblies of God in Australia) (ABN 65 004 617 467), of Suite 408, 12 Century Circuit, Baulkham Hills NSW 2153.

ACC ACCumulator is designed for investors who wish to promote the charitable purposes of the ACC and for whom considerations of profit are not of primary relevance in the investment decision.

The objective of the ACC ACCumulator is to support the mission and objectives of the ACC, including maintenance of a pool from which loans can be made to ACC churches. Investors in ACC ACCumulator will be directly resourcing the growth of ACC churches while receiving interest on their investment.

Investors should note that the ACC ACCumulator is not subject to the usual Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) requirements to issue a Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) or other disclosure document and be registered or have a trust deed.

ACC ACCumulator, It's Application Form or this Guide, has not been examined or approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC).

ACC ACCumulator is not prudentially supervised by the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority (APRA). Therefore, an investor in ACC ACCumulator will not receive the benefit of the financial claims scheme or the depositor protection provisions in the Banking Act 1959. Investments in ACC ACCumulator are intended to be a means for investors to support the charitable purposes of ACC.

ACC ACCumulator features

Investments in ACC ACCumulator unsecured debentures are accepted for a range of investment terms as set out in the applicable Schedule of Interest Rates.

There are no entry, exit, or transaction fees.

The minimum opening balance of any ACC ACCumulator investment is $1,000. If at any time your Notice Investment is less than $1,000, you will not accrue interest until your investment is $1,000 or more. There is no minimum "top up" amount on Notice investments.

The minimum redemption amount from your Notice Investment is $1,000, or the balance of your investment, whichever is the lesser. You can withdraw all or part of your Notice investment by contacting us by phone, mail, fax or email and then providing the necessary redemption form.

A 31 day notice period is also required. We can send you a cheque for the amount you wish to withdraw or credit it directly to your nominated bank account. Any nominated bank account must be in exactly the same name(s) as your investment. We require a minimum of 31 days prior notice of intention to withdraw funds.

We will contact you when your Term Investment is nearing maturity, and ask for your instructions about whether you wish to withdraw it or reinvest it for another term of the same or a different duration. In an emergency, you may apply to terminate your Term Investment early but we may pay you only a lower rate of interest for the period of your investment. The 31 day notice period may also be applied after we have determined the appropriateness of any exemption to the statutory rule.

*Exceptions may apply to ACC affiliates. Refer to "Definition" in Terms and Conditions.

How interest is calculated and paid

Interest is paid as set out in the applicable Schedule of Interest Rates given with this document or available online, which forms part of this Investor Guide. These rates are subject to change without notice. The current schedule is available on request.

The rate of interest payable on your Notice Investment may vary from time to time. We will tell you about these changes in your quarterly statement.

On Term Investments, the rate is fixed for the period of the term, but we may change the rate of interest that we offer at the expiry of that term when we ask you if you wish to roll over your investment for another term.

For Notice Investments, interest is calculated on the daily balance and paid monthly in arrears, and when you close your investment. For Term Investments, interest is calculated daily and paid quarterly in arrears and at the expiry of the term. We may agree other arrangements with you.

Interest is paid either to increase the balance of your Notice investment in ACC ACCumulator, or directly to your nominated bank account. You make this choice when you establish your investment.

Alternatively, investors wishing to maximise the benefit of their investment to ACC may choose to forgo their right to interest payments on that investment and have it paid instead to ACC. These funds will be used directly by ACC to resource the mission and objectives of the church. If this option is chosen, the interest foregone is not assessable as income to the investor. Individual circumstances may vary, however, and ACCD recommends that investors obtain their own tax advice.

Risks

There is a risk your investment in ACC ACCumulator may pay a lower rate of return than an equivalent investment in a comparable product because the ACC ACCumulator is managed primarily to provide affordable finance to ACC churches, potentially at discounted rates.

ACCD promises to repay your investment when you apply to withdraw it or when it matures in accordance with its terms, and to pay interest as set out above. These payments are made out of the assets of ACCD, however investments are not secured and although investments are supported by the underlying assets of ACCD, there is a risk that ACCD may be unable to pay.
